

Dr. Aravantinou Leonidi holds a PhD in State Theory and Political Comparative Institutions (comparative constitutional law) obtained from the University of Rome La Sapienza in 2009. Holds a MA in “Comparative Political Institutions and Constitutional History” from the Faculty of Political Sciences University La Sapienza of Rome and a BA/LLM from the Faculty of Political sciences University La Sapienza of Rome in Comparative Constitutional Law/Anglo-American Public Law. Dr. Aravantinou Leonidi has been a post-doctoral research fellow at: the University La Sapienza of Rome (2014-2015), the University of Roma 3 (2010-2011) and the Alexander S. Onassis Public Benefit Foundation/Kapodistrian University of Athens (2012).

She is a member of several national and international research projects: IRN «e-DELIB. Démocratie et libertés à l'ère numérique: vers la e-démocratie de droit » (2021-2025), Public dynamics of fear and inclusive citizenship, financed by the University of Roma Tre (2018-2019), (PRIN Research Project 2010-2011 “National Parliaments and the EU in the multilevel governance” (Italy), Research Project “From Fiscal Compact to Constitution: Shaping a Legal Form for the Balanced Budget Rule” CNCS - UEFISCDI, no. PN-II-ID-JRP-RO-FR-2012-0137 directed by Elena-Simina Tănăsescu (University of Bucarest) and Eric Oliva (Université Aix-Marseille), Forum International sur la Constitution et les institutions politiques” ForInCIP directed by Prof. Jean-Philippe Derosier Université de Lille 2 (France) (2014-to date), PRIN 2008 “Constitutions and State Security: contemporary patterns and likely trends”)(Italy).

She has taught Comparative Constitutional Law, Anglo-American Public Law, Democratization Processes, Islamic Law and Constitutional Law in Italian Universities (Rome “La Sapienza”, Roma Tre, Bologna) and in Greece (Kapodistrian University of Athens) both to undergraduate students, Master’s degree students and PHD students, in Italian, English and Greek. She currently teaches Comparative constitutional law, EU Law and Public Administration for the undergraduate and LLM courses of the ELGS (EPLO). She also teaches at the Master’s degree programme in “European Political Institutions for Assembly Officers Mario Galizia” - University of Rome La Sapienza (Italy) of which she is also a member of the Admissions Board.

Her main research interests concern Comparative public law, American government and constitutional law, Greek constitutional law, UK public law. She has published over 90 articles in national and international law reviews and collective publications. Her latest book “Inside Parliament. The Institutionalization of Parliamentary Bureaucracy in the United Kingdom. A comparative perspective” (in Italian) has been published by Cedam-Kluwer in 2020.

She has attended several national and international conferences presenting papers on several topics (e.g. IACL World Congress 2014, ICON-S annual conference 2017, 2018, IACL Roundtable 2015, ECPR 2020).

She is a member of the International Society of Public Law (ICON-S) and other national academic associations. Since 2005 she has been serving on the editorial board of several law reviews in Italy.

She fluently speaks and writes in Italian, Greek, English, French and Spanish.