

Nikos Erinakis

Dr. Nikos Erinakis [b. 1988, Athens] holds a Ph.D. in Philosophy [Universities of London and Oxford], having studied Economics [AUEB], Philosophy and Comparative Literature [Warwick] and Philosophy of the Social Sciences [LSE]. He has taught Social & Political Philosophy, Philosophy of Art and Aesthetics at the University of London and he now teaches at the University of Athens, the Athens School of Fine Arts and the Hellenic Open University. His first philosophy book Authenticity and Autonomy: From Creativity to Freedom (2020) was published by Keimena Press, as well as three poetry books and two translations of major modern European poets. His papers and articles have been published in international peer-reviewed academic journals, edited collections and the popular press.