

George Kosteletos

Dr. George Kosteletos is Research Fellow at The NKUA Applied Philosophy Research Laboratory and academic fellow at the University Mental Health Research Institute (NKUA) where he conducts research in the field of Moral Psychology. He teaches Ethics of Artificial Intelligence as an adjunct lecturer at the Department of Philosophy of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens and Neuroethics as an adjunct lecturer at the Open University of Cyprus. He holds a PhD in Philosophy of Artificial Intelligence. His areas of interest include also Philosophy of Cognitive Sciences and Philosophy of Mind. He has published papers and articles in international peer-reviewed academic journals and edited collections.